nox est perpetua una dormienda.
da mi basia mille, deinde centum,
dein mille altera, dein secunda centum,

Damon and Phintias (Cicero, De Officiis iii, 10, 45)

Loquor autem de communibus amicitiis; nam in sapientibus viris perfectisque nihil potest esse tale. Damonem et Phintiam Pythagoreos ferunt hoc animo inter se fuisse, ut, cum eorum alteri Dionysius tyrannus diem necis destinavisset et is, qui morti addictus esset, paucos sibi dies commendandorum suorum causa postulavisset, vas factus est alter eius sistendi, ut si ille non revertisset, moriendum esset ipsi. Qui cum ad diem se recepisset, admiratus eorum fidem tyrannus petivit, ut se ad amicitiam tertium adscriberent.

Vocabulary and Background

Cicero is discussing friendship (amicitia). He moves from ordinary (communis) friendship to that of perfect men. As an example, he tells the story of Damon and Phintias who belonged to the philosophical school of Pythagoras. The tyrant, Dionysius decided on a date to execute one of them. The other stood surety for him to allow him time to put his affairs in order. The tyrant was impressed with this friendship, put the execution off, and requested to become part of it.
