Although there are laws to protect children, many are found in sweat shops. A sweatshop is a business or factory where people work long, hard hours for very little money. People from in sweatshops are often abused and work in unhealthy conditions. There are also young children who make bricks in the hot sun from morning to night. Children who work cannot go to school to get an education. This means they are often trapped into a life of hard labour and suffering, because they are not educated to do anything else. "All children have the right to free and equal, no-racial, non-sexist and compulsory education within one department as education is a right not a privilege". It is a criminal offence to employ a child under the age of 15, except if you have a permit from the department to employ children in the performing arts.
