

November examination 2019

COURSE: Global Communication

DEPARTMENT: Communication Studies

TIME: 3 hours

SUBJECT CODE: CMS3BB3/CMS3B21

MARKS: 100

EXAMINERS: Mr D Tomaselli
Prof M Burger

Instructions:

- Answer any 2 questions.
 - All questions carry equal marks
 - Use the essay writing format prescribed by this module.

1. A close analysis of the global media flows of film and television indicates that most media products flow transnationally rather than nationally. In view of the above observation, discuss the potential impact of global media flows and counter-flows on nationhood and cultural identity in the global South.
2. Discuss how innovations in 'spatial computing' may fundamentally impact on communications with regards to 'personalisation of the rhetorical codes'. Consider discussing issues such as direct address, the impact of spatial computing such as augmented, cross and virtual reality, and the concept of the uncanny valley.
3. Explain how Blockchain technology fundamentally enables decentralization and provide an argument for how they may potentially alter current transactions in areas such as banking, media consumption or any other area you think may be appropriate. You may also consider the social implications that decentralized technologies may afford.
4. Referring to annexure A 'Pepper & Carrot - Episode 26 Books are Great'. Discuss the narrative structure of the comic. You may consider major turning points, narrative beats, moments of impact and tension release patterns.

Pepper & Carrot

Episode 26: Books Are Great

...and then cover the eye with a hat...

...the door should open by itself!

They even recommend leaving the hat in place to make an easier escape!

Books are so great!

"Jump directly over the first balcony."

OK!

"You may notice a falling sensation. This is normal. This is a shortcut."

BOING

BOING

"Enjoy the comfort of the illuminated web without any risk: these spiders are photosynthetic and feed off of the reflected light."

"I recommend a quick nap to restore all your strength."

I so love books!

Oh, Carrot;

I know how much cats don't like to get wet.

Don't worry!

Books are also good for that!

And in less than ten minutes
from entering the dungeon,
I'm sitting in the treasure room picking leaves off of the rare Water-Tree.

Books are magical!
